What's Love All About?

Hello! Haha just a quickie heads-up: If you've seen the show (H2O), you'd know that this is not like Rikki at all. I guess it's my definition of what love's really about lol. I'll just say it's a different side of Rikki.*

What's Love All About?

Love. How would you spell love? It's not something you spell, it's something you feel. How would you describe love?

My name is Rikki Amelia Chadwick.

If you ask people what they think love is all about, you're most likely to get different answers. Mine?

Love is all about passion. When you play the dating game, if you don't feel anything, don't be with that person anymore.

Love is all about acceptance of each other's quirks and flaws, and going out of your way to love them.

Love is all about commitment. Coming together as one. Pledging your love for one another until the afterlife and beyond.

Love is all about loving the inside of a person. Their heart and soul. If they are pure and holy, go for it!

Love is all about loving one another whether wealthy or poor, healthy or ill, alive or dead. Until death do you part.

But what about breakups?

Sure, breakups are tough, especially if you're _being_ dumped, as opposed to _dumping_. But I consider it a lesson on wisdom and personality. They can hurt, but I consider it to be like an X-ray machine. You can see right through them. How shallow they really are. But we should be thanking them for that lesson.

Well, I hope you enjoyed seeing the deeper part of me that I would never open up to _anybody_.

Once again, my name is Rikki Amelia Chadwick, and my definition of what love's all about? I know I did pretty darn well.
